KeyMacro brings you an automatic Mac OSX login manager. It is very simple to use. You only need to put your username and the password you use to login the computer, and KeyMacro will do the rest. Simplified, our program works as follows. As soon as you login your computer, KeyMacro will check if there is a password set. If it is so, it will ask you for the password you use to login. If there is none, or if you want to use a different password, it will ask you for it too. After you have put your username and your password, the program will type them into the login screen and save them in its logfile. KeyMacro supports the following authentication methods: MAC: This is the common authentication method for all Mac OS X users. In this method, you only need to enter your username and your password. Windows: This authentication method is used to log in to the computer of a Windows user. In this way you only need to enter your username and your password.
