(If you prefer watching over reading, this article is also available as a video.)Q: Select element in JSON I have a JSON that I read from a file. When I open this json through a document object it looks like this:

{\"question_number\":1, \"author\": {\"name\": \"Peyman\", \"id\":1}, \"code\":12, \"level\": [
  {\"item_number\":1, \"answer\": {\"answer\": \"1\", \"id\":1}}, {\"item_number\":2, \"answer\": \"2\",
  \"id\":2}, ... .. {\"item_number\":n, \"answer\": \"n\", \"id\":n} } }

The problem is when I select information from the document that looks like this, it doesn't work. How can I select particular information from an object? {"question_number":1, "author": {"name":"Peyman", "id":1}, "code":12, "level": [{"item_number":1,"answer": {"answer":"1", "id":1}}, {"item_number":2,"answer":"2", "id":2}, {"item_number":n,"answer":"n", "id":n}] } A: Selecting information is not the same as reading it. You could make a mapper object that maps your json a certain way. For example: [{ "id":"1", "item_number":"1", "answer":"1" }, { "id":"2", "item_number":"2", "answer":"2" }] You would then transform it into: {"author":{"id":"1","name":"Peyman"},"code":12,"level":[{"item_number":"1","answer":"1","id":1},{ "item_number":"2","answer":"2","id":2}]} Then you call that mapper in a different function and that should work. 933d7f57e6

Photoshop now has a new file organization system that allows documents to live in the cloud on the virtual timelines system (a.k.a. Smart Object or Smart Layer). The Photoshop on the web and mobile is also getting a number of refinements including a new document camera raw view that lets you preview adjustments made in the browser, and the new content aware fill (CAT) tool that eliminates the need to fill objects in or out of the photos yourself. The tool is available right from the Fill & Other panel for each image after the photo is loaded, which removes the need to constantly modify the original photo. Rather than relying on layers and layers of complexity like "groups", Smart Objects, "sublayers" and Action layers, the new layer plane tools make working with layers more straightforward. The new tools also allow users to work on handles on layers rather than working with vector shapes. Adobe Photoshop Actions is a new feature that allows users to easily automate tasks in Photoshop by applying a set of options to a group of images, making adjustment, retouching, and the output of an operation the same for each image in a series. Users can use image-editing Actions to quickly retouch a list of images or to correct a group of images. Actions are available to purchase online.

- Syncing with mobile devices
- Syncing with desktop devices
- Locking assets in your library to prevent changes in your library
- Reordering assets or pages in your library
- Removing or adding libraries or assets to your library
- Sharing your library between Creative Cloud users
- Using Creative Cloud Libraries on mobile, desktop, and web apps When you log into the Creative Cloud desktop application, any libraries that you created will be listed in the vertical navigation menu under "libraries."
